Our team was inspired by Fearless Girl- a bronze statue by Kristen Visbal. The bronze young girl stares up at New York Stock Exchange Building in the Financial District of Manhattan in New York City. She was originally on Broadway staring down the Charging Bull statue, but the Charging Bull sculptor Arturo Di Modica requested her to be moved, and a plaque of her footprints was placed on the original site. For the fearless girls who came before us and paved the way, we continue to build on the path left before us. In a constant cycle of birth, life, death, and rebirth it takes strength, courage, and bravery to push through boundaries and continue to grow and reach new heights. We are stronger together than apart, and once we embrace the uniqueness of the individual, we find that we can move mountains.

TEAM SPECTACLE

CHOREOGRAPHIC EXCERCISE

We are representing the definition of what street art is: A public act of resistance often originating from powerful emotions such as "rage". Because it exists in public spaces, this type of impassioned art is intended to provoke thought and debate with its audiences, and while we are not making a specific statement, we are demonstrating how emotion and defiance is at the core of creating street art.

At the heart of a once-glorious kingdom that has recently lost its king, the people witness the power struggle at play between the old order and the younger generation that is striving for hope and renewal. The growing desire for change emerges within the "youth" to defy the status-quo and bring joy to the world once again. It is through the power of optimism and creativity that the youth are able to seek a new path forward for the people. In this process, they uncover the unimaginable. The piece explores the themes of energy, social change, and enlightenment. It celebrates new discoveries and the true meaning of "Alegria": joy.
